Introduction

WHAT YOU WILL LEARN IN THIS BOOK:

- How to take inbound phone calls (pops) with confidence.
- Setting appointments without giving away price while leaving the customer feeling comfortable.
- How to make outbound prospect calls with confidence, setting appointments with a high "close" rate.
- Referral calls that actually work.
- How to overcome the "best price" question while also keeping the customer engaged and comfortable.

This book doesn't just give you lines and scripts, but gives you the psychology to each technique so you understand why it works. Understanding is the key to confidence in overcoming objections.

Inbound Calls (Phone Pop)

STEP BY STEP SHORTCUT

01. Introduction and exchange names twice
02. Get the vehicle of interest
03. Create a stall
04. Discover what they value (hot buttons)
05. Create a pattern interrupt
06. Create fear of loss/sense of urgency
07. Create hope
08. Narrow down time
09. Set an exclusive appointment
10. Send follow up text with contact information, address, time, picture of vehicle and video

In the typical inbound phone pop, the customer asks about the availability of the unit, then the best price. Our goal is to set the earliest appointment without going in-depth on pricing.

EXAMPLE OF INBOUND CALL:

Sales: Thank you for calling ABC Motors. This is Curtis. Who do I have the pleasure of speaking to?

Customer: My name is Tom

Sales: Good to meet you, Tom. Again, my name is Curtis. How may I help you?

Customer: I saw a truck online. I want to see if it's available.

Sales: Great, Tom. In case we get disconnected, is the 559 387 number the best number to reach you?

Customer: Yes, it is.

Sales: Great, Tom; do you have a stock number to that vehicle?

Customer: Yes, it is 5892A.

EXAMPLE OF INBOUND CALL:

Sales: Perfect, Tom. Let me look that up for you. I'm just logging into my computer. While I'm looking that up, what is it about that truck that jumped out to you?

Customer: A couple of things. It's the color I wanted.

Sales: Well, Tom, I have good news. Currently, that truck is available; however, I do see that there are already two appointments set for customers to view that truck. The first one is in two days. Here's the nice thing, Tom. We are a first come, first served store. This means that if you get here first and like the truck, you'll have the first opportunity to buy it. Are you available to come right now?

Customer: No, I'm at work right now.

Sales: No problem. What time do you get off work?

Customer: 5pm.

EXAMPLE OF INBOUND CALL:

Sales: Ok, and how far from the store are you?

Customer: Like 30 minutes.

Sales: Ok. Perfect. Let me see what I have available after 5:30. I have a 6:15 available today. Do you want to take that spot?

Customer: Yeah, that'll work.

Sales: Perfect. I'll put you down for 6:15. I'll also text you all of my information and directions to the store. I'll see you later today.

Key Takeaways: Between "Is it available?" and "What's your best price?" we created a pattern interrupt. We created fear of loss and used that urgency to set our appointment. This technique will work 80% of the time, just like it reads in this example phone call. You hold the cards. You know you have what he wants, but the customer will try for a little more if you allow it. Just give them a little hope. Once they are in the store, we can get the sale.

Service to Sales Calls

STEP BY STEP SHORTCUT

1. Say Prospect's name only to prevent getting
2. screened.
3. Who, where, why, benefit. Goal 7 seconds.
4. Wait for question. Questions mean interest.
5. Offer answer that requires coming in to the dealership and puts them in the winning position.
6. Narrow down time. Set exclusive appointment.

This call is best done the day before their service appointment. It gives the prospect time to process and check your website for vehicles that they may be interested in. If you make the appointment too many days ahead of time, your prospect has time to lose interest. If you make the call the same day as the service appointment, even if they are excited, there is almost always someone at home they need to talk to.

Start with just buying their car, not a sales pitch. Make them the answer to your problem (of needing their car) by putting them in a winning position.

EXAMPLE OF SALES TO SERVICE CALL:

Sales: Hello Tom, this is Curtis calling from ABC Motors calling to confirm your oil change appointment tomorrow morning.

Customer: Yes, I'll be there at 9am.

Sales: Great! Hey, the reason I am calling is that I have a customer looking for a 4WD Explorer with the 3.5 like yours. I've been searching auctions for a month and can't find one anywhere. We have only a week to find one before his approval expires. My question to you is: If we offered you over market value for your car, would you consider selling it to us?"

Customer: That depends. How much are you willing to give me?

Sales: I'm glad you asked. The next step is easy. When you come in tomorrow, I will do a physical appraisal and send a couple of photos to my customer. If he likes it, I will make you an over market value offer. Then you decide what we do from there. Sound good?

EXAMPLE OF SALES TO SERVICE CALL:

Customer: Yes, that's fine.

Sales: Perfect. I'll see you in the morning and I'll text you my information when we hang up.

Key Takeaways:

1. Create a dealer problem they have the answer for.
2. Create a time line in which you need this problem solved.
3. Offer over market value in exchange to help you in this situation. This creates fear of loss by putting them in a winning scenario that may not be available later.
4. Never ask them to trade or buy another car. When they hang up, they will look at your inventory for another vehicle.
5. When the prospect is at the appointment with their vehicle, then you may ask them if anything in the inventory interests them. Let THEM tell you what they want to buy.

Equity/Buy Back Calls

STEP BY STEP SHORTCUT

1. Say Prospect's name only to prevent getting screened.
2. Who, where, why, benefit. Goal 7 seconds.
3. Wait for question. Questions mean interest.
4. Offer answer that requires coming in to the dealership and puts them in the winning position.
5. Narrow down time. Set exclusive appointment.

When making this type of call, get to the point quickly. You are either calling a stranger or a previous customer who is not expecting this call. When the prospect answers the phone, immediately greet them by their name so they don't screen the call. Then identify who you are, where you are calling from, why you are calling, and the benefit for them to stay on the phone.

If you give the prospect the opportunity to talk prior to giving the benefit, he is likely to terminate the call with an excuse.

EXAMPLE OF EQUITY/BUY BACK CALL:

Sales: Hello, Tony?

Customer: Who is this?

Sales: This is Curtis. I'm calling you from ABC Motors. The reason for my call is that your F-150 4X4 came up as a perfect match for a customer of mine that is looking for one. I'm curious to know if we offered you enough money for yours, would you consider selling it?

Customer: That depends on your offer.

Sales: Great! The next step is easy. When you bring it in, I'll do a 15 minute appraisal and send a few pictures to my customer. Then I will make you an over market value offer. Of course, it's totally up to you. Sound good?

Customer: I don't want to waste a trip down there.

EXAMPLE OF EQUITY/BUY BACK CALL:

Sales: I promise you that you are not wasting a trip. You have the vehicle I need. Besides that, I heard we have the best coffee in the Central Valley. Can you make it in now? (Start narrowing down your appointment time. Don't be afraid to use humor. It works.)

Key Takeaways:

1. With this technique, you want to get to the benefit quickly.
2. Who, where, why, benefit. Wait for a question. I'm glad you asked, the next step is easy. Set the appointment.
3. Don't ask if Tony is available. He is likely to screen you and ask who's calling.
4. Don't ask "Do you still have the F-150 4X4." Assume he does, and get to the benefit quickly so that he doesn't try to end the call.

Trade Up/Rate Reduction Calls

STEP BY STEP SHORTCUT

1. Say Prospect's name only to prevent getting screened.
2. Who, where, why, benefit. Goal 7 seconds.
3. Wait for question. Questions mean interest.
4. Offer answer that requires coming in to the dealership and puts them in the winning position.
5. Narrow down time. Set exclusive appointment.

This call is ideal for a customer in your CRM who bought 18 to 48 months ago and has a rate at 12.99 or higher. This customer may not have purchased their first choice of car, but rather what fit the financial program. The higher rate most likely lowered the front end when the deal was made, which would put them in a good position to upgrade. The goal is to cause the customer to feel hope that they can get the car of their choice this time with little to no change in their payment.

As always, get to the point fast; do not waste time making small talk. Remember the 7 seconds goal.

EXAMPLE OF TRADE UP/RATE REDUCTION CALL:

Sales: Hello Mr. Smith. This is Curtis calling from ABC Motors where you bought your 2018 Corolla. I'm calling to let you know that your vehicle may now qualify for an upgrade, meaning that you may be able to get a newer vehicle at or near the same payment. Are you ready to upgrade your vehicle?

Customer: That depends on what the payments are.

Sales: Perfect. The next step is easy. When you come in, we do a quick appraisal on your vehicle, collect a little information from you, then go over all your new options. What day this week works best for you?

Customer: I work all week. I get off at 5pm.

Sales: And how far are you from the store?

Customer: About 30 minutes

Sales: Perfect. Let me see what I have available after 5:30 this week. What day works

Sales: (Narrow down the appointment)

Key Takeaways:

1. Narrow down their availability before you start offering times. You want to keep this exclusive.
2. Once you get past the pitch, stay on the phone. Don't hang up until you make the appointment.
3. Give them hope. If they don't believe it's going to work, they won't come in.
4. Set the nearest appointment time. Every day removed from the initial call, they are 20% less likely to show up.

Cars For Sale

STEP BY STEP SHORTCUT

1. Ask if the car is still for sale
2. Ask about title and accident
3. Say who you are, where you work
4. Create a need for their car
5. Ask customer to bring the car in for appraisal and offer
6. Do NOT mention buying a new car
7. Narrow down time

Here is another good source of leads. Often people who are selling their cars are doing so in order to have the money to buy or put down on another vehicle. If I call them and offer to trade it in, I'm going to get a lot of declines. They tend to think that you just want to sell a car, not help them solve their problem.

When I make this call, I stay focused on what they are selling, I create a need for that specific car. I don't talk about them buying a car from me.

EXAMPLE OF CALL TO CUSTOMER WITH CAR FOR SALE:

Sales: Hello. I saw you have a 2015 Tacoma for sale. Do you still have it?

Customer: Yes, I do.

Sales: Perfect. Are there any accidents on it? Is it a clean title?

Customer: No accidents. Clean title. No issues. It runs perfect.

Sales: Perfect. So listen. I work at ABC Motors. I have a customer looking for a 2013 to 2016 Tacoma under 100K. I had trouble finding one until I saw yours. I showed my customer a screenshot of your ad, and he likes the car. If you are willing to bring the car to the dealership, we could make sure it will pass smog and safety, then I could make you an offer, which I think will be real close to your asking price.

Customer: Can you tell me over the phone what you are going to pay for it?

Sales: What if my offer is too low because I haven't seen it? Would you let me buy it anyways?

Customer: Not if it's too low of an offer.

Sales: What if my offer is too high and when we see it we have to change the offer. Are you going to be upset?

Customer: Yea, I'm going to be pissed.

Sales: That is why I am asking you bring the truck to the dealership. I don't want to guess at an offer and potentially upset you. You have the truck I need and I want to buy it. Give me 15 minutes to inspect your truck and let me see if I can get you a check. Can you come in now? I don't have another appointment until 6, so I do have time now.

Customer: Yea. I can be there in like 20 minutes.

Sales: Perfect. I'll see you then.

EXAMPLE WHEN CUSTOMER IS AT THE DEALERSHIP:

Sales: Ok. Mr. Customer. Now that I have all the information on your truck, I'm going to turn this over to my used car manager to get the final bid. This will only take a few minutes. If the offer is to your liking and you sell the truck to us, will you need a ride home or will you need to replace it with something else?

Customer: I'll need to replace it.

Sales: Do you have a specific vehicle in mind?

Customer: Yes, I need a bigger truck to pull our boat.

Sales: Perfect. I'll tell you what. Let's take a look at what we have while he is appraising your truck. If we find something you like, I'll get you numbers on both. Of course, you tell me what you want to do from there, fair enough?

Customer: OK, sounds good.

Key Takeaways:

1. You have to be persistent. The customer will want the information over the phone, but that never works out for the dealership.
2. Only after the customer arrives at the store, and I have the information on the truck, will I ask them if they are looking for a car. I let them tell me. People want to buy, not be sold.
3. The set up is everything. You can't rush the process. It's very effective. I've done this many times, and it almost always goes like the example script.
4. DO NOT say that we are looking for good cars for our lot. This is open ended with no specific time cap. Both the need for their specific vehicle and a specific deadline are the keys to success with this technique.

Unsold Showroom Traffic Calls (1 Min)

This call applies to the customer who can buy but either won't commit to buy or you get to the number they want and they are still uncommitted. For example, the customer says we just need to think about it, sleep on it, never make decisions the first day, etc. Usually, there is something they are not telling you for whatever reason. I make this call right after they leave.

The goal of this call is to extract the truth so that we can solve the problem.

EXAMPLE OF USST/ 1 MIN CALLS:

Sales: Mr. customer. This is Curtis from ABC Motors. I know you just left here, but something is really bothering me.

Customer: What's going on?

Sales: Well, I think you came here with the intent of buying a car and I think I messed that up for you. Can you let me know what I did wrong?

Customer: You didn't do anything- we just need to think about it.

Sales: Mr. Customer, you drove here from 20 miles away, you knew exactly what you wanted. You let me run your credit. I think you came to buy a car and I did something wrong. I have a 4pm appointment coming later and I don't want to repeat the same mistake. Could you let me know what went wrong?

Customer: Curtis, you did not do anything. The truth is we won't have the money down for a month. I'm waiting on some money.

Sales: Is that the only thing holding you

Customer: Yes.

Sales: Do me a favor. Hop off the next exit and come straight back. I'll talk to my boss right now and get this worked out. Can you come straight back?

Customer: Ok. I'll be there in a couple of minutes.

Sales: Perfect. I'll see you in a bit.

EXAMPLE OF USST/1 MIN CALLS:

Key Takeaways:

1. People sometimes realize they may not be able to afford the purchase when they are in the negotiation. It could be the down payment, or too much payment, or some other reason they feel that their finances are tight. If I don't get the truth from them, they are likely to go to another dealership and tell them the truth because they now realize that they don't want to waste anyone's time.
2. For this call to work, you must be sincerely concerned and convince them that this is really bothering you and that you let them down. Keep working until you get to the underlying reason- the truth.

Notes:

[illegible]

USST (Next Day Follow Up Call)

The goal of this call is to reengage your customer. You tried to close them while they were here; you did the 1 minute call to get them back. Do not pick up the previous conversation, or you'll get the same negative response. Now it's time to give them brand new information in order to obtain a brand new answer from them. Put the customer in a winning scenario and create fear of loss (too good to say no).

Don't be afraid to over promise in order to get this customer back in the store.

EXAMPLE OF USST/ NEXT DAY FOLLOW UP CALLS:

Sales: Mr. Customer, this is Curtis from ABC Motors. My used car manager just walked up to me and asked about your vehicle. He asked why we didn't take it in trade. He told me he can't find these at the auction anywhere, and we may have been thousands off on our bid. He wants to see this car himself. He normally leaves at 5pm, but he told me he would stay late if needed. He wants to see this car. Can you come in now?

Customer: How much is he going to give me?

Sales: He has to see it, but last time I saw him get this excited, he paid 1000's more than our original offer. I promise that you are not wasting your time. Can you come down now?

Customer: I'm at work now.

Sales: How far from the store are you?

Customer: About 30 minutes.

Sales: (Narrow down time and set appointment)

Key Takeaways:

1. When making this call, you want to be a good actor. Use urgency in your voice to make the customer feel like they can't miss this opportunity. This is done through delivery, not just the message itself.
2. You can use these reasons: Used car manager, we missed our weekend goal, a new manager came on shift, and he wants the deal. Something has to have changed that puts the customer in the winning seat.
3. DON'T bring up anything from the day before.
4. DON'T try to close over the phone.
5. DON'T be afraid to oversell the appointment.

USST (3rd Day Follow Up Call)

The goal of this call is to reengage your customer.

Calls 1 and 2 didn't work. Let a day go by. On day 3, reach out again, this time changing the scenario. You need to reengage completely and get their attention again. You also need to create a fear of loss to help them move forward

As long as they think they have nothing to lose and that the offer is always going to be available, they will procrastinate.

EXAMPLE OF USST/ 3RD DAY FOLLOW UP CALLS:

Sales: (Send a text picture or video of a different but similar model.) Text: Hey Mr. Customer. I thought of you when this came in yesterday. What do you think of this one? (If they respond, they either ask a question about that car, or they say that they only want the car they were looking at. Either way, you have their attention. Most of the time they will refer back to the first vehicle. Now it's time to create fear of loss)

Customer: That's nice, but I'm going to stick with the Camry we looked at.

Sales: Well, I have some bad news on that Camry. Is it okay to call you now and go over the details?

Customer: Yes, that's fine.

Sales: Mr. Customer, part of the reason I sent you a new option is my internet department set an appointment on the Camry for tomorrow night.

EXAMPLE OF USST/ 3RD DAY FOLLOW UP CALLS:

Sales: These people are coming from 3 hours away, so I'm pretty sure they are coming to buy it. The good thing is that we are a first come, first serve store. Can you make it in tonight so we can work out the details on this unit? Nobody is going to work harder for you than me.

Customer: I don't get off until 6 pm.

Sales: Perfect. We take our last appointment at 6:45. Can you make it by then?

Customer: Yeah. I should be there by then.

Sales: Great! I'll see you tonight.

Key Takeaway: The customer is trying to take the luxury of time- procrastination. The more time that goes by, the more likely they are to talk themselves out of buying right now. Treat this call as your last chance.

Customer Care Call

This call occurs when you know that there is a deal to be made, but you just can't seem to close the customer. Have a BDC Rep or co-worker make this call. A female employee works better. People don't usually hang up on a female as quickly as a male.

The goal for making this call is to discover what stopped them from buying. If the salesman who initially worked with them tries to make this call, he is likely to get the same negative response as when the customers were in the store. The goal is to give the impression of a 3rd party making the call, not necessarily someone at the dealership.

EXAMPLE OF CUSTOMER CARE CALLS:

Sales: Hello Mr. Customer. This is Pam calling from the Toyota customer care team. It looks like you were just at our Fresno Toyota store, so I'm calling to get feedback on your visit with that store.

Customer: How can I help you?

Sales: We want to make sure that you had a pleasant visit with Fresno Toyota. How was your overall experience?

Customer: It was good. Everyone there was helpful.

Sales: Ok. Great. When you arrived, were you greeted outside and offered something to drink?

Customer: Yes. The young man was great.

EXAMPLE OF CUSTOMER CARE CALLS:

Sales: Is that the only thing that prevented you from moving forward?

Customer: yes

Sales: Great. Thank you for your time. Part of our customer care program is to reach out to the store and let them know we didn't offer enough for the trade. You will probably be getting a call from them.

Customer: okay. Thank you.

Key Takeaway: Sometimes it's that simple. The customer won't always tell you what it takes. They feel like it's confrontational, or maybe they feel that they said yes to something they really couldn't afford. The goal is to get them to open up to a 3rd party person so that we can get the real answer.

Referral Calls

STEP BY STEP SHORTCUT

1. Thank them again for their business.
2. Offer your service.
3. Mention the referral request.
4. Ask an easier question (2nd request).
5. Identify WHO
6. Identify the PROBLEM
7. Offer multiple solutions, making it easy for them to give us their contact information.
8. Get the contact information.
9. Tips: Be persistent. You can only make this call once, so keep going until you get a name and number. Never ask permission to call them. Ask only what is the best way to contact or reach out to them.

Your first attempt isn't to get the referral, but to give them time to process the question.

Your second attempt will get you the lead. Don't hesitate to be persistent. You only have one shot at this call. DO offer your service. If they do have a problem and you are the one to fix it, you will have a customer for life.

EXAMPLE OF REFERRAL CALLS:

Sales: Hi Tom. This is Curtis from ABC Motors. I just wanted to follow up with you on your recent purchase and see how everything is going.

Customer: So far, so good.

Sales: Awesome. Now that you've had it for a week, is there anything I missed in the delivery that you need help with? Were you able to set your bluetooth?

Customer: No issues. Everything is fine.

Sales: Ok, great. If you need anything, please don't hesitate to reach out to me.

Customer: Got it. Thank you for the call!

EXAMPLE OF REFERRAL CALLS:

Sales: No problem. Hey Tom, while I have you on the phone, I have a request. As you probably know, most of my business comes from repeat business and referrals from customers like yourself. With that in mind, do you know anyone looking for a new or used car?

Customer: Not off the top of my head, but if I hear of anyone, I'll send them your way!

Sales: Hey Tom. I know that's a tough question to answer on the spot. Let me ask you an easier one. Out of everyone you know- friends, family, coworkers, people at the gym or church- who would you guess is going to buy a car next?

Customer: I'm not sure

Sales: Just make a guess. I won't hold you to it.

Customer: If I'm guessing, I'd say a coworker.

EXAMPLE OF REFERRAL CALLS:

Sales: A coworker? What is his or her name?

Customer: My buddy Sam.

Sales: Why would you say Sam?

Customer: He's been having some issues with his truck. I had to pick him up last week.

Sales: I see. If I reached out to Sam and went over a couple of options, do you think he would mind? I have some trucks here that would be more reliable for him. At the very least, I could set him up with my service department to get his truck looked at the employee discount rate. Do you think he would mind that?

Customer: No, I don't think so.

EXAMPLE OF REFERRAL CALLS:

Sales: Great. What is the best way to get in touch with Sam?

Customer: His cell is 559-555-

Sales: Thank you! I appreciate

Key Takeaway: Now I have a name, a problem to solve, and a common friend. This should be an easy appointment to make.

Best Price

STEP BY STEP SHORTCUT

1. Introduction and exchange names twice.
2. Use the "scheduled appointments" technique
3. Use the "glad you asked" technique
4. Acknowledge
5. Bridge
6. Narrow down time
7. Set an exclusive appointment
8. Send follow up text with contact information, address, time, picture of vehicle and video

Of all the leads, this particular phone pop is as close to an up on the lot as you can get. You have what they want, but they will want to find out if asking about the price up front saves them more. Value or price- those are your options. You still need to give hope.

EXAMPLE OF SCHEDULED APPOINTMENTS TECHNIQUE:

Sales: Mr. Customer, with two scheduled appointments already on this unit, I'm guessing it's priced correctly. That being said, we are a first come, first serve store. Come in as planned, and if you like it, let's make an offer together, fair enough?"

EXAMPLES OF "I'M GLAD YOU ASKED" TECHNIQUE:

Sales: "I'm glad you asked. We use third-party pricing to make sure we are priced below the market. However, we are always open to offers made in person." Set the appointment.

Sales: "I'm glad you asked. Our new cars are VIN specific, meaning each one is slightly different. When you come in and pick out the exact one you want, I'll get you all of the programs and discounts that apply to that unit."

EXAMPLES OF "I'M GLAD YOU ASKED" TECHNIQUE:

Sales: "I'm glad you asked. 95% of our vehicles qualify for huge discounts off MSRP, they are VIN specific so once you pick yours out, we will get you all the discounts that apply."

Sales: "I'm glad you asked. 95% of our customers shop online before coming in, knowing that we are already offering great prices in order to attract business. That being said, we are always open to an offer after the test drive. When is a good time to come test drive? Are you available now?"

Key Takeaways:

1. Acknowledge/bridge/set appointment
2. Give hope on the phone, but we want them in the store to negotiate
3. The winning combination is to show value in our pricing but give a little hope that if they drive here, they might get a better deal.
4. You may also use takeaways, offering a similar vehicle in their price range.
5. Sometimes, the slight fear of loss changes everything.

Lease Return Pre-Inspection

OPTIONS:

1. They turn the lease in and walk away paying DEP fee and any miles and excess wear & tear fees.
2. It's the best car they ever owned and they want to keep it. We flip this lease to a purchase before the lease return date.
3. We appraise their vehicle and verify if it is worth more to the dealership than the return value. If so, we'll buy the car and give them back the positive equity.
4. We roll their positive or negative equity into a new vehicle of their choice.

This technique works best on customers about 90 to 120 days from lease term. However, I have sold many of these leads with 12 months left on term.

EXAMPLE OF LEASE RETURN CALLS:

Sales: Hello John, this is Curtis from ABC Motors where you leased your 2022 Camry.

Customer: yes whats going on?

Sales: Your lease is coming due in the next couple of months, so I want to schedule your pre-inspection and go over all your options. I have a few openings this week, what's the soonest you can make it in?

Customer: What are my options?

Sales: Basically you have 4 options. Option 1, you can turn it in and walk away. You may have mileage fees and or excess wear & tear fees. Option 2 , we appraise the vehicle and if you have positive equity you can put that money back in your pocket vs giving it back to the manufacture. Option 3 you can take that equity and apply to a different new or used vehicle of your choice.

EXAMPLE OF LEASE RETURN CALLS:

Sales: Or last option, it's the best car you ever owned and we convert your lease to a purchase. When you come in well go over all these options and see what works best for you. I have a couple openings this week what day works best for you?

(set the appointment)

Key Takeaway: In most cases this customer is easy to flip to a purchase especially if they are over mileage or there is damage to the car. Even curb damage to wheels can motivate them to purchase the car. This is an easy call with high return on investment.

Phone Tips & Tricks

- 1. Creating stalls and pattern interrupts.
This is best used right in the beginning to lead the conversation and get it going in the right direction.

Sales: Let me just log in here real quick. By the way, where are you calling from? (Your leverage here is to discover if they are calling from a distance. If they are, then you know you have exactly what they want.)

Sales: While I'm looking that up for you, what is it about the vehicle that jumped out to you?

Sales: We use a third party for our appraisals. Are you familiar with Independent Buyer?

PHONE TIPS & TRICKS

- 2. Create urgency. Customers will procrastinate and negotiate as long as they think they have time and nothing to lose. If they think the offer is available later, they will wait until later.

EXAMPLE:

Sales: Mr. Customer, it looks like my internet team has 2 appointments already scheduled on this unit. The great thing about our store is we are a first come, first serve store. The first appointment for this unit is 2 days from now. Can you make it in now?" (In this example, I always give 2 days so they have time to get here first. Not giving enough time will get answers like "Well, call me if it's still there. I'm at work right now")

PHONE TIPS & TRICKS

- 3. Create fear of loss. This not only creates urgency, but it retains gross profit.

EXAMPLE 1, FEAR OF LOSS:

Sales: Mr. Customer, it looks like my internet team has 2 appointments already scheduled on this unit. The great thing about our store is we are a first come, first serve store. The first appointment for this unit is 2 days from now. Can you make it in now?" (In this example, I always give 2 days so they have time to get here first. Not giving enough time will get answers like "Well, call me if it's still there. I'm at work right now")

PHONE TIPS & TRICKS

EXAMPLE 2, FEAR OF LOSS:

Customer: Well, I can't make it until Saturday and it's only Tuesday.

Sales: There is an appointment set for Friday on this unit and we stay open until 8pm. Is there any way you can come in tonight while it's still here?

Customer: What is the best price you can

Sales: Our pricing tool shows it's priced well. The appointment is coming from 3 hours away, so I'm sure he's coming to buy the car. That being said, it's hard for my boss to say no to an offer made in person. What time can you be here?

4. Set the shortest appointment. Every day that the customer is delayed coming into the store, you lose about 20% of the chance that they will be motivated to come in to the store. Regardless of the follow up process, there are too many variables, like cooling interest or an unexpected bill or event. A lot can change fast. Once your appointment is set, then try to shorten it as much as possible.

Sales: Mr. Customer, we have 20 sales guys here all trying to sell the same cars. Is there any way you can get here sooner?

Sales: Mr. Customer, a lot of people don't know this, but we stay open until 9pm. We take our last appointment at 8:45. If you get this out of the way tonight, you can enjoy your weekend in your new car. Can I pencil you in for tonight?"

Always, always use customer benefits when persuading them.

PHONE TIPS & TRICKS

5. Put the customer in the winning scenario.

Everyone wants to win, so focus on putting your customer in the winner's seat any time you can. I like to use dealer distress and the customer having the answer to our problem.

EXAMPLES:

Sales: "Mr. Customer, we are looking for your exact trade in; we can't find it at the auctions. My used car manager said he will stay to look at your car. He does not want us to miss this trade."

Sales: "My customer is looking for your car, and his approval is getting ready to expire. If you can bring in your vehicle and my customer likes it, I'm going to pay way over value for it. "

PHONE TIPS & TRICKS

EXAMPLES, CONTINUED:

Sales: We missed our weekend goal. Now my boss is going crazy working all the deals himself today. He never says no to a deal. I told him about you, and he wants to work your deal. Can you come in now?

6. Last tip: Don't be afraid to over promise.

The usual premise of under promise and over deliver does not persuade people to drive to your store. Over promise and over deliver wins the deal.

WHY SALES PEOPLE HATE PHONES

When people don't get positive results from an activity, they won't enjoy it. Managers tend to ask sales people to do tasks that they are not willing to do themselves. Sales reps view phones as a punishment when they are asked to go sit in a corner and make calls with no help or training.

SOLUTION: TRAIN OR COMPLAIN

- Use this book to train with your sales reps
- Let them know that you will learn together
- Lead by example, making calls yourself.
